Pathway Navigators

Summary:

The Pathway Navigators Initiative has been designed to meet the career advancement needs of underrepresented constituents in the Triangle leveraging national best practices including:

 Acknowledging the power of strong community relationships by engaging credible messengers that are based at community institutions like community-based organizations, schools, etc.

Ensuring that these credible messengers and their organizations have current and thorough information on a wide range of available career advancement opportunities in a particular geography. Additionally, that organization staff serving in a coaching capacity, have the skills and tools they need to help individuals seeking career advancement to find the right fit and match for their interests and aptitudes, emphasizing the autonomy of individuals to choose their own path after receiving support, access, and information.

Recognizing that shifting mindsets and beliefs about what is possible in populations that have been long marginalized from economic mobility, requires holistic support, clear and transparent information, and warm hand offs between the steps in the process to achieve career advancement.

Outcomes for this work will include:

- Pathway Navigators will share resources and best practices, ensuring accurate and current information about career advancement opportunities in the Triangle.
- Coaching best practices will be elevated across the Triangle with a focus on supporting individuals to identify their own pathway toward career advancement.

• Education, training, and upskilling opportunities across the Triangle will be organized and shared more broadly and effectively through partner organizations and movement building and the development of a communication strategy.
